Oxford Wins the Bace

By Cable and Associated Press.] LONDON, March 21.-The fortyeighth boat race between Oxford and Cambridge was decided this morning. It was won by a quarter length by Oxford. Time 22 minutes. The race over the usual course from Putney Bridge to a ship at Mort Lake, about four and a quarter miles. Owing to the "S" shape of the course, it is in favor of the right hand or Middlesex position, while the left or Surrey side is the best for the next two miles, and the Middlesex water is most advantageous for the last mile and a quarter. This year the tide was high at London Bridge at 1 P. M. At Putney, an hour later, the whole course was Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road immediately attacked Harrington. crowded with spectators. The rival eights started prettily | President of the Cherokee Strip Live and successfully at 11:09 A. M. sharp. Both crews bent to their work, hail and snow was falling upon them in no pleasant fashion, and a strong cross northeast wind was raising a very he considers the outlook in the cattle lumpy sea. Both crews had been expecting bad weather, and consequently they both utilized high wash boards. Cambridge at the first got away with the lead, pulling a shorter and somewhat quicker stroke than Oxford, and at Clasper's boat house the Cambridge boat was ahead. Then Oxford bent to her work, pulling a long, dragging, powerful stroke, peculiar to the oarsmen of that university. This stroke soon told, and Oxford was leading slightly at Craven Cottage, six furlongs from the start. At Crabtree, one mile and three furlongs from the start, Oxford had the lead by a length, but under the influence of a period of rison already has the support of the bright sunshine which succeeded the hail and snow, Cambridge spurted nearly ahead in fine style. This effort redoubled the cheers along the river banks, and at the soap works, one mile, three and one-half furlongs from for $200, payable to the Globe, was the start, the two boats were appar- received last night from John Teemer ently "nose and nose." Both were of St. Louis as a forfeit for a match pulling evenly and strongly and it was race with Edward Hanlan for $1,000 a then evident that a stubborn contest was in order, and those who had been laying heavy odds on Oxford began to purse Hanlan may prefer, to be three feel sad, while a corresponding feeling miles and a turn. The challenge will of jubilation was experienced by the remain ten days, and if not accepted friends of Cambridge. Nearing Hammersmith bridge, one mile and six furlongs from the start, Cambridge again made a magnificent spurt, pulling finely and thoroughly together, and passed under the bridge a quarter of a length ahead amid a scene of tremenduous excitement. Their time to this point was 8 minutes and 56 seconds. Cambridge made a gallant spurt which resulted in their being first under Hammersmith Bridge, and New York City and sentenced to imaccording to tradition should have landed their boat first over the winning line. Oxford did not lose heart, however, but bent down all the more doggedly to work, and at the Doves two miles from the start, Oxford led slightly, Cambridge still sticking to her work in magnificent style in spite ports of beef, hog and dairy products of the creeping up of their dark-blue from the United States during the opponents. Tremendous cheering from the river sides caused each man in the two boats to strain every nerve to win. Oxford, when nearing Chiswick, was leading, but it was by a few feet only. Going towards Corney Beach the hoats struck into smoother water, which assisted the lighter men in the Cambridge boat, and beyond Thorny Crafts they forged ahead, eventually leading Oxford by a quarter of a length.

From that point Oxford had much the best station, getting almost clear from the light blues, though both crews were rowing in superb style. Here everything seemed to depend upon the power of spurting which remained in the two crews. The strokes CHICAGO. of the two racing crafts were redoubled, if possible, by the power and mechanicism which they sought to infuse into the men behind them. The river banks were literally packed with hoarsely cheering crowds of people, excitedly waving hats, handker chiefs, sticks and umbrellas.

Gallantly, coolly and without any outward sign of exhaustiou, the contesting crews tugged at their oars with the utmost brilliancy and nerve. The the latter was a messenger for the struggle in the last quarter of a mile of the course will be long remembered in the aquatic world. It was simply magnificent. Oxford had all the work she could do cut out for her.

The boats rounded Barne's bend of the river, Cambridge rowing pluckily and with plenty of strength, but Oxford passed over the line by a quarter of a length, amid intense and almost indescribable excitement, winning the grandest race rowed on the river Thames in many years. Oxford's time was 22 minutes. Betting was nominally 3 to 1 on Oxford.

Fired with a desperate effort, by our noble General C. W. Booton to barm the boys in whose charge he is trying to leave the town of Reno, while he will desert the ranks. Too thin, General; you don't hide your disgraceful action with so gauzy a defense. You have pledged yourself to the mer-chants to close your place of business every evening at 8 o'clock, and not to the boys; but in your fall from grace you tried your utmost to drag the boys with you, and for that purpose appealed to them at two different meetings. But if you have no regard for honor, you can't besmear the boys, who will not allow themselves to be who will not allow themselves to be made tools of by you in assisting you to break your pledge to the merchants. To the Business Men and Citizens of the State of Nevada:

OPERA HOUSE DRY GOODS STORE .- C. W. BOOTON

The time has come when I am compelled to plead my own cause in this boycotting business. First, I will acknowledge that I signed the first contract to close at 8 o'clock, also that I did all I could to carry it out and help the League, but as it has been my misfortune to have reverses in business, and as I was compelled to raise money for parties that I owe, I went to the Clerk's League at a meeting on two different occasions, and told them it would be impossible for me to close at 8 o'clock.

Now, when the League says that I, on different occasions violated my pledge, all I can say and can prove, and that by Mr. Al Wilson, who is a member of the League, that it is FALSE, as Mr. Wilson has been in my employ since the contract was signed.

So far as my word is concerned, it is for the people to say, and not for the League to publish such trash to the entire State. I will further state that when the time comes that a few boys try to pull down and degrade a man when he has the misfortune that I have had, then it is high time to sell out and let the boys run the town.

Respectfully,

C. W. BOOTON.

This can always be done if you choose to, as nature in her kindness to man gives timely warning and plainly tells in nature's way, that as a punishment for some indiscretion, you are to be afflicted with a cold nnless you choose to ward it off by prompt action. The first symptoms of a cold, in most cases, is a dry, lond cough and sneezing. The a dry, loud cough and sneezing. The cough is soon followed by a profuse watery expectoration and the sneezing watery expectoration and the succeing by a profuse watery discharge from the nose. MYRON C. LAKE.

The Life of a Well-Known Reno Pioneer.

A Bit of Early Unwritten History that May be Read With Interest

A bit of Reno's early history and an account of the men who first settled this region in 1859 and the early '60's will not prove uninteresting reading to the old-timers, and the rising generation may find something that can be read with profit to them. Myron C. Lake, the subject of this sketch and the following illustration, crossed the Sierras from Rabbit Creek, Cal., in 1857, and settled on a piece of unsurveyed land in Lassen county, California. He planted an orchard, built a log cabin, and fixed himself to live as others lived who bordered the "Great American Desert" in early times. He had but $40 in coin when he left Rabbit Dreek, but plenty of life, spirit and pluck, and a pair of willing hands to help him lay the foundation for a snug little fortune. The first trade that he made after landing in Honey Lake was the

SALE OF HIS OVERCOAT

In exchange for seed wheat which was sown on his "squatter" claim. proceeds of which enabled the to get through the first winter. His native shrewdness enabled him to make a number of successful trades until he found himself the happy possessor of a little span of mules. He raised watermelons and other garden truck which was loaded into a wagon, and with the little mules transported out on the old em-igrant road and sold to the stream of emigrants then crossing the plains in search of new homes and wealth. Mr. Lake continued to traffic with the emigrants, buying their alkalied and the $40 and overcoat had grown to quite a stock farm, and some money besides. In 1859 he traded his Honey Lake property (squatter claim), with the Fuller brothers for the land now occupied by Reno, and a ferry across the Truckee where the iron bridge now stands. He constructed a bridge in place of the ferry and built a toll road to Anderson, the place now owned by Sparks and Tinnin, formerly belonging to J. C. Smith, where the old Henness Pass road branched off for California

arried away the bridge structure two or three times before he got one that would stand. In the meantime the Central Pacific Company was preparing to span the continent with iron rails, and the location of a town site for Western Nevada was demanding attention. Mr. Lake had a quarter section of the land where the town now stands sown to wheat when the official of that company began nego-tiating for a town site, which cul-minated in Mr. Lake giving them the right of away and every alternate block of ground in the proposed town site. Virginia City was then in the prime of its vigor and the whole country was responding to the pulsation of prosperity, and the railroad then near-ing the town gave renewed energy to business of all kinds and the country was alive with brave and energetic men seeking to take ADVANTAGE OF THE NEW ORDER Of things. When the railroad reached Reno it stopped nearly all the traffic that had been going on across the mountains via Donner Lake, and the vast number of teams engaged in haul-ing freight were immediately trans-ferred to the road between Reno, Virferred to the road between Reno, Virginia, Carson, Empire and points further south, and Mr. Lake began making money hand over fist. He had a little story and a half building on the south side of the river on the site of the Riverside Hotel, known as the Lake House, a blacksmith shop and hay yard, which were crowded night and day by teamsters who paid liberally for what they are and drank, for a poor quality of tangle foot sold at two bits a drink. His hotel and hay yard yielded a handsome income, and yard yielded a handsome income, and as the rates of toll were $1 on a span of horses and wagon, and 50 cents for each additional span, it will readily be seen that the bridge was a bonanza, for a constant stream of teams was crossing it from early morn till late at night. His old books show the larg-est day's receipts for tolls to have been $2,500, and it run from $75 or $80 been $2,500, and it run from $75 or $80 up to $2,000 per day for five or six years, or until 1875 or '76, when his Iranchise expired and he was forced to give up the source of a great income. He did not, however, give it up without a struggle, for the day that the franchise expired he stood on the bridge with a six-shooter and still demanded his toll from a versione, who crossed from his door on an empty stomach whether he had money or not. He ended his earthly career on June 20th, 1882, and when he did so he closed an interesting chapter of the good old days of long ago. While his death was not so deeply deplored by the community at large as it should have been, the life of Myron C. Lake was one that the RISING GENERATION Could learn many an important lesson from. He left an estate valued at about $300,000, the bulk of which went to his son Charles, now about 15 years of age. A large amount was spent in litigation, but as all things come to an end, the estate of Mr. Lake was finally amicably settled. The Riverside Ho tel, built in 1870, is about the only monument of improvement that stands to his credit, but the ones he left be-hind are enjoying the fruit of his thrift and industry, while the old gen-tleman peacefully sleeps in the Odd Fellows cemetery free from the care and perplexities incident to this life.

BROKEN HILL MINES.

Extracts from a Letter and Report of John Howell, General Manager. From a private letter received at the GAZETTE office from Manager John Howell, formerly of the Reno Reduction Works, is taken the following extracts, which will be of interest to many who knew that pleasant gentleman. The letter is dated February and, among other things, says:

"I have barely time to write briefly for the return California steamer. Although I intended to stay out here but a year, when I came, yet I am here over two years already, and the people I am with have by degrees managed to get me so identified with them that I cannot at present say when I will get away. I was not here long before I was appointed General Man-ager of the Broken Hill Proprietary Mine and also the British Mine. These are great mines and we have the most extensive metallurgical works in the world. To give you some idea of the extent of the mines and works, I send you my half-yearly report. an working about 3,500 men and am kept pretty busy. Remember me kindly to any inquiring friends."

From the report referred to in the above letter is obtained some interesting facts. The dividends paid for the half year ending May 31, 1890, amounted to £464,000, and for the half year ending November 30, 1890, the amount was £518,000, showing an increase for the last term of £64,000, which is attributed mainly to the large increase in the price of silver, and it was mainly from this source that the additional dividend was paid without taking from the mine an increased quantity of ore. At the close of this latter term the monthly dividend was £96,000. At the close of the report the company had on hand in cash, bullion and supplies £202,772, or about $1,000,000, after paying the dividends named. The ores are principally reduced by smelting and this requires thirteen furnaces, which reduse 7,310 tons weekly, at a total cost of £4 5s 9d per ton. The cost is to a great extent owing to a scarcity of water, which for steam purposes is caught in rain water reservoirs; also, to an extensive labor strike last fall, in our money, over,$10,000,000. Beef Cattle.

Los Angeles is stripping the southern part of the State of all available beef cattle, and Salt Lake is taking what few that are left in the eastern part. The fact is fully demonstrated that Arizona beef is not likely to cut as much of a figure in the coast marets as San Francisco butchers have led us to believe, else why does Los Angeles come to this State for cattle? Nevada produces finer beef than any ific coast section, and when they want a first-class article they are ound to come to this State for it.

Words of Good Cheer.

Wm. Brockman of Susanville informs the Advocate that the farmers in that county never had a better prospect for a successful season than they have at present. The ground has all the moisture needed, and a great deal more land has been sown to grain thus far than in former years. In fact the farmers all have a on their faces, and this year will have wonderful effect in improving the condition of agriculture in Lassen

"A GROWL."

MR. EDITOR: Although my taxes are small, yet they are as burdensome to me as if I paid much more: And as a tax-payer, I feel that I have a right to criticise those extravagances that are factors in the creation of high taxes. I have in my mind the county hospital. No sooner does the impecunious citizen become broken down and debilitated, than he rushes off to the hospital. Even persistent dyspepsia and constipation are getting to be excuses for admission. Hence, allow me space to enter my feeble protest against further continuance of this pernicious practice. It costs too many hard dollars for the treatment of these unfor-tunates, and it is high time that they should know that they can save the county that ex-pense, by the judicions use of a few bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, —a remedy that within my observation is a sovereign cure for those too common disorders. If they von't take it they ought to be compelled to by some law that would meet the case Under the circumstances a full hospital is Porous Plasters and be relieved. J. F. Davenport, of Canarsie New York, Writes: "I have been very much troubled with a violent pain below my chest bone. I was told by several physicians that it was rheumatism of the disphragm. It resulted from cold and exposure. I had very little appetite and dig-sted my food with great difficulty. I placed one Alleock's Porous Plaster below the breast bone and 2 on each side. In the course of twenty four hours all pain ceased, and I was able to est and digest a good square meal, something I had not done before in two weeks. I got better constantly, and at the end of seven days found myself entirely well. Since then I have used Alcock's Porous Plasters for colds, coughs and pains in my side, and I violent pain below my chest bone. THE WORLD ITS FIELD. Record of the Ravages of the Most Dreaded of Discuses.

So far as anybody can discover now says the New York Times, consumption has existed in all ages and in all countries. As far back as the records of civilized people can be traced they tell of the existence of the disease and of its character. In coast lands and plateaus, valleys and hillsides, marshes and mountains, the bacillus has been carrying off its thousands ever since manlind has been on earth. German statisticians have figured it out that in any population on the average the proportion of deaths by consumption is to the deaths by all other diseases as one to seven.

Here are some figures showing what the death rate from consumption has been in some of the principal cities of the world. From 1877 to 1880 all the German cities having over 15,000 inhabitants showed yearly 3.6 deaths from consumption for every thousand of population. From 1869 to 1882 Berlin's rate was 3.8 per thousand per Hamburg's record was In Frankfort-on-the-Main the fatal cases each year were 3.5 for every thousand inhabitants. From 1865 to 1874 the rate in Vienna was very high, reaching no less a percentage than 7.7. London does not make so poor a showing as might be expected from a city having a bad climate. From 1848 to 1855 its rate for consumption was 3.7. In the ten years from 1859 to 1869, however, the rate went down to 3.2. Edinburgh's record for four years about 1860 as 3 f tal cases for each thousand inhabitants. In the four years up to and including 1855 Belgium made a showing of 3.5. For the Netherlands, from 1869 to 1874, the figure was 2.46. Switzerland, from 1865 to 1869, showed 1.86. In Berne the rate was far higher than this, reaching 3.9. Among the cities of Europe the rate was lowest in Geneva, where it was 2.2. The country districts brought down the average for the confederation. In Paris, from 1845 to 1851, the showing was 4,1; from 1872 to 1877 it was 4.2. Italian records give variations from 3.73 to 4.04. The rate in Rome is given as 3.52.

In Rio Janeiro there is a rate which is rather surprising to persons who have looked upon that town as enjoying a very warm climate. The city, according to the statisticians, loses five of each thousand of its residents each year through the ravages of consumption. Pernambuco makes even a more unfavorable record, for there the figures run to 5.2. The rate for Australia is given as 2.22.

In this city, from 1805 to 1837, the rate was 5.3. By 1870 it was down to 4.1. Albany in that year showed 2.9 and Buffalo 1.4. Between 1807 and 1840 the rate in Philadelphia was 5.6. In 1870 it stood at the comparatively low figure of 3.1. Chicago in the same year was returned at 1.6, Richmond, Va., at 3.9 and St. Louis at 1.7. In Charleston, S. C., the rate for the whites was 3.7, and for the blacks .4. The rate in Memphis was 2.82 and in New Orleans 3.9.

These figures give one an idea of the prevalence of the disease which is said to sweep away about 3,000,000 of the earth's inhabitants every year. Consumption very often lasts from two to three years, and frequently it covers a greater period. A record is given of one patient who had the disease for forty years, finally succumbing to it. Of course to all consumptives the Koch treatment is a matter of the greatest importance. Naturally they watch with eagerness for the results of the experiments with the German professor's

Some writers on the subject of consumption declare that the fatal termination of most cases leads to an underestimate of the number of instances in which recovery takes place. The popular notion of its universally fatal character, they say, is a mistake. Traces of an old tuberculous affection are not very uncommon in bodies examined after death from other and various diseases, showing that the progress of the old ailment had been arrested.

Changes of climate and improved methods of treatment have all done much to retard the progress of the disease, but any thing like a generally effective cure has never been within the each of the consumptive. Sanguine advocates of the lymph prophesy much for it. Their greatest hope is that it will supply just this long sought desideratum.

Queer Things About Lobsters. What Maine men don't know about lobsters is not worth telling. Here is their latest information on the subject as given by the Lewiston Journal: Who of our readers ever heard of a lobster getting mad and shooting off one of his claws? If we may rely upon the veracity of the old lobster man, this popular crustacean, like the members of the human family, is capable of biting his own nose to spite his face. He says that when a lobster gets excited in any way he sometimes shoots off one of his big claws. It comes out as clean as a whistle and leaves a hole clean cut and with no jagged edges. In the course of a few days a new claw will grow, and his lobstership can keep up that interesting operation as long as he chooses. The lobster is the only creature that scientists have been able to discover having the power of doing such a thing. But, according to the old fisherman, the funniest part of it is if the lobster loses his claw by any other force than his own it will not grow again. If you pull the claw off the lobster will go around for the rest of his life minus one claw."

Souvenir for an Ex-Queen. The Queen of Roumania, during her recent sojourn in England, say foreign papers, visited a needle factory. While watching the work one of the men aked her Majesty for a single hair from her head. The Queen granted his request with a smile. The man, who was engaged in cutting the eyes in the needles, placed the hair under the needle of his machine, bored a hole in it, drew a fine silk thread through the the hole, then presented it to the astonished Oneen as effective as could be desired."

BUILDING A LIBRARY. No Royal Road to One Which Will Be of

As there is no royal road to learning, so there is no royal road to that outward and visible sign of it which consists in shelves well filled with books, says a writer in Kate Field's Washington. The man who wants a library can not get it ready made. He may, it is true, buy a collection of books fairly well fitted to the average mind, but it will be about as satisfactory as the ready made coat fitted to the average body It will fail to meet his individual eccentricities.

Nor can the ideal library be gathered in a hurry. Nothing is more helpful to the tone and quality of a library than such a moderate degree of poverty as will limit purchases at first to the absolutely essential. In the buying of books, as in the buying of pictures, real discrimination comes only through actual experience, and it is very unfortunate to have too many bought at a low grade of development; but, on the other hand, no man should wait to begin his library until his taste is fully formed, or it will lack many books which he would gladly have there, but which would not run the gauntlet of his mature judgment.

A very common error in buying books is to start with cheap editions under the erroneous impression that later on they may be replaced by good ones. Unfort-unately, the mind of the book lover will not assent to this plan, however strong his will. The book he takes up to read is invariably the old and shabby one, and the other becomes only a splendid bit of decoration, to please the eye of the visitor. Your pet literature lways tastes best from the page on which you originally read it; so, when you buy a book of which you are likely to become fond, it should be in a good enough form to keep. At least, paper and print should be a new binding will respectable that all the change necessary. With the habitual student the sense of location is very highly developed. In his own library he finds things by their position on the page, and can turn at once to any given passage in a familiar author. But put him in a room full of strange editions, and this laboriously acquired sixth sense becomes utteriy useless.

The taste for fine bindings is a liking apart from the love of books for what they contain, but it is by no means an ignoble tendency, and adds vastly to the. esthetic effect of a well-chosen library. The housing and care of books, too, is a subject not beneath the notice of even the profoundest student,

Society Out West.

"There are," said the drummer, "some persons who seem to think that the people of the far West, however enterprising and hospitable they may be, live in a rough-and-ready sort of style. Of course, the fact is that people of refined tastes like to be civilized wherever they are, and in these days of quick communication the people at all established centers of population live in about the same manner throughout the country One would be likely to find as many men in dress suits at an evening social enter-tainment in a Montana or a Texas city as he would at any similar entertainment in an Eastern city."

At the San Carlos agency an Apache bet a bottle of whisky that his wife could earry two hundred pounds of flour half a mile without resting. She was a light, slim woman, but she added fifteen pounds to the load and ten rods to the distance and won the whisky for her liege lord. It unnecessary to say that she got none of it.

Some of Both. Medical scientists can not agree as to whether the man who commits suicide is insane or idiotic, says the Detroit Free Press, and there is a prospect of reaching a verdict which will end with "some of both." It is a fact that out of every fifty suicides only two or three can be accounted for by any reasonable excuses on the part of the living.
